

Features of Fair Parenting Plan

The details of a parenting plan do not have to be negotiated with the other parent. Parents, grandparents, children and their communities can rely on a third party organization with trained professionals dedicated and committed to Fair Parenting excellence.

The need for in-person or telephone contact is avoided with the Fair Parenting Plan. Parents are safeguarded from having to experience hostility or anxiety from each other. Scheduling conflicts are avoided and other disputes (money or property) can be isolated to attorneys, mediators or emails.

Fair Parenting Plan families enjoy community services and activities designed for their participation.

The schedule is designed by mental health professionals and scheduling experts in the best interests of children and parents.

The schedule is not affected by a parent's gender, lifestyle or relationship status.
